Prof. D. Joyce, Spring 2017

Due Due Wednesday, Mar 29.

Part I. Write up either a detailed outline or a beginning rough draft of your paper. You can email me the rough draft if you like; it's not necessary to use paper. If you do a detailed outline, besides the major points you'll probably have a couple dozen minor points. If you start a rough draft instead, it will probably only be a portion of your final paper although it could be a rough draft of your whole paper.

Part II. Exercises from the text. Exercises from the text. Page 319, exercises 24 and 36, and on page 359, exercises 1 and 17.
